About The McFarland Family

Some of the information listed on the following pages regarding the early history of the McFarland and MacFarland ancestry/clan has been graciously provided by Earl MacFarland, who researched and compiled the MacFarland-Bowman Genealogy Project. See links to take a look at his web site. Other references used includes, 1998-2008, Swyrich Corporation. www.nameorigins.name, the McFarland family records, photos, and stories.

Legend has it that the ancient MacFarlane Clan history stretches back to the Clans of the Dalriadan kingdom of the sea-swept Hebrides islands and mountainous western coast of Scotland. The Dalriadan Scots descended from Conaire II, the 111th Monarch of Ireland. His son Carby Riada commanded several expeditions into Scotland taking settlers with him to the west coast and Hebrides Islands. He was the first King of the Dalriadans, whose name means Riada's portion of Riada's tribe. For centuries, the Dalriadans competed with the Picts, Boernicians, and Strathclydes for supremacy. In 844, a half-Pict and half-Dalriadan named Kenneth MacAlpin united the thrones of the two tribes. As his dominion included the regions that later became the counties of Argyll, Perth, Fife, Stirling, and Dunbarton, he is generally considered to have been the first King of Scotland.

The name MacFarlane is derived from the personal name Parlan, which is the Gaelic equivalent of Bartholomew. Over the years, MacFarlane has been spelled McFarlan, Farlane, Farrian, Farriant, Farrlint, Farriand, McFarlain, Farlin, McFarland, McFarlane, McFarlen, McFarlene, McFarlin, MacFarlan, Farriyn, Farland, Partlind, McPerlind, and many more ways. Patronymic names such as MacFarlane were one of the most popular styles of surnames chosen during the 11th and 12th centuries when surnames were beginning to be used in Scotland. They were made by adding the prefix Mac - meaning 'son of' to the name of the initial bearer's father or grandfather. In the case of Clan names, such as MacFarlane, Mac was added to the name of the patriarchal Clan Chief. The development of the Clan system in Scotland predates formal hereditary surnames (a Dalriadan named Fergus most probably initiated it in the 6th century). However, the system became widespread during the reign of King Malcolm of Ceanmore and his second wife, Margaret, in the 11th century, when surname usage began in earnest.

The MacFarlane Clan were first found in the County of Argyll (now in the Strathclyde region), where the chief of the Clan acquired the lands of Arrochar from the Earl of Lennox in the late 14th century. This chief, Duncan, gained many of the surrounding lands through marriage in 1395 and claimed the title of Earl of Lennox upon the death of the old earl, who had left no male heir. In fact, the MacFarlanes had a reasonable claim to the Earldom of Lennox, for which they fought so strenuously, for their eponymous ancestor was Parlan, the great-grandson of Gilchrist. His brother had been Maldowen, the third of the ancient earls of Lennox during the 13th century.

When the title of Earl was conferred upon Sir Jon Stewart, a bitter feud ensued between the MacFarlanes and the Stewarts, which lasted until the 15th century. Interestingly, in the next century, the warlike MacFarlanes became supporters of the erstwhile foes and distinguished themselves in many battles. However, by the 17th century, the Clan was outlawed and became scattered, with some members immigrating to Ireland and later to America.

Those that went to Ireland were settled in the Plantation of Ulster. In 1890, there was a census taken of Scottish families in Ireland, and there were over 2,060 people bearing the surname of McFarland; about 95% of them in the province of Ulster. The same census revealed over 537 people bearing the surname McFarlane (66% in Ulster), and over 2,464 people bearing the surname McParland (65% in Ulster).

Further persecution of the Clans, combined with the religious and political upheaval of the Jacobite uprisings and the 'Glorious Revolution' caused many Dalriadan Scots to leave their beloved homeland in search of greater opportunity in Ireland, Australia, and the North American colonies. The voyage was terribly difficult and many people indentured themselves for several years to pay the huge fees charged. Passengers arrived sick and poor, if at all, but they were welcomed with ample land, opportunity, and freedom.

Many of the ancestors of Dalriadan families who arrived in North America still live in communities along the east coast of Canada and the United States. In the American War of Independence many settlers who didn't fight for the American side traveled north to Canada, as United Empire Loyalists. In the late 19th and early 20th centuries, the ancestors of many Scots began recovering their collective national heritage through Clan societies, highland games, and other patriotic events.

Research into the origins of individual families in North America revealed records of the immigration of a number of people bearing the name of MacFarlane or one of its spelling variations. For example: John Macfarlan who landed in Charlestown South Carolina in 1766; Lord MacFarlin who landed in Boston in 1769; Walter Macfarlin who landed in North Carolina in 1775; and Alexander, Andrew, Daniel, Hugh, George, Henry, James, John, Mary, Patrick, Robert, and William MacFarland all who arrived in Philadelphia between 1840 and 1860.

The 1984 edition of the Report of Distribution of Surnames in the Social Security lists the surname MacFarlan as the 4,301st most popular surname in the United States. The same Report lists McFarlan as the 521st most popular surname in the United States.
